Three killed in blast deemed murder victims

Three of the four people who were killed in a massive house explosion that rocked the Lago Lindo neighbourhood Sunday afternoon were homicide victims, city police confirmed Thursday.

The death of the fourth person found in the rubble has been deemed as "non-criminal," by a medical examiner after an autopsy was done Tuesday.

Police say Jeanne Cath-leen Heard, a 47-year-old who owned the home with Dwayne Richard Poirier, 46, died from foul play in relation to the explosion but Poirier, who was also killed in the blast in the home at 18011-91A St., didn't die from foul play.

Brad Winter and Craig Huber were both found dead by emergency crews in a house next door to the explosion. Both were deemed homicide victims.

"We recognize this incident has affected many people who are looking for answers," said police Insp. Darren Eascott.

Police and fire investigators still don't know what caused the blast and it's still under investigation.

Investigators are also not confirming or denying media reports that they found Heard's body wrapped and bound. And police remain tightlipped on other reports that the home was full of natural and propane gas when the it blew up.

Province receives award for anti-tobacco consumption efforts

STEFAN STRANGMAN for Metro Edmonton

The government of Alberta was presented with an award today for its efforts in reducing tobacco consumption in the province.

and Wellness Health Minister Gene Zwozdesky accepted the Tobacco Re-Achievement Award on behalf of the province at a ceremony downtown Thursday.

The award recognizes the province's role in helping reduce tobacco consumption in Alberta for the past three years.

Since 2007, the government has implemented several different measures to cut down on tobacco use, including the prohibition of tobacco displays in retail locations, increasing taxes on cigarette packages, and legislation to public places and work places smoke-free.

Along with these other initiatives, Zwozdesky said that one of the key parts of the reduction strategy is to educate children about the dangers of tobacco.

"We're focusing a great deal on the school system to help those kids who have started smoking to stop and to prevent kids from ever starting up," he said.

Marie Downey, Anne who sits on the Alberta Breathes steering committee, said that the reduction in smoking within the province will benefit all Albertans.

"This is a reduction that improves the quality of life for thousands of Albertans and reduces the impact on the health-care system," she said.

FESTIVAL One-quarter century and over 5.3 million visitors later, the Works Art and Design Festival is still going strong.
The Works, celebrating its 25th anniversary, will feature art and design works all over the downtown core from June 25 to July 7. Walking tours are available for those who wish to hunt down hidden artistic treasures.

The Works headquarters is located at Churchill Square and is open from 11 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. and will have brochures showing the location of all the featured pieces.

This year's festival is slated to bring in an estimated 250,000 visitors.

Soap box derby needs volunteers to pick up momentum

Organizers behind Race Week Edmonton are giving the soap box race another go this summer, but they still need volunteers who need to be ready and set to go come July 11.

Gary Poliquin, a co-ordinator for Race Week Edmonton, says the annual race came to a halt in 2004 because it was "too much for volunteers."

But with some new sponsors, and some new volunteers, Poliquin hopes Race Week Edmonton's Soap Box Derby on July 11 can become an annual event.

"The inaugural Race Week Edmonton Soap Box Derby is about kids having fun with safe adult supervi-sion," said Poliquin.

MUSIC What do you get when you give an Ontario country boy a guitar, educate him in jazz, and throw in a dash of classical and rock?

You get Brad James, a Stoney Creek, Ont.-based country singer out doing his first-ever Western Canadian tour. James is scheduled to play in Edmonton on Friday at Wildwest Saloon and has seven other shows across Alberta.

Starting off in a country bar in Belleville, James grabbed an acoustic guitar and jumped on stage. He's come a long way from there and has released his debut album and his song If You Like That Sorta Thing has been played on country music radio stations throughout Ontario.

Now he's out on the road exploring and playing in new parts of Canada.

"I'm just stoked to be in a part of Canada that I've never seen before," James said.

Not only is he excited to be coming West, he's also happy to be doing what he enjoys most; Playing his music.

"I'm getting to do something I love," James said. "I'm very lucky that way."

Brad James plays the Wildwest Saloon Friday night.

Issues still up in the air as big summits get underway

Global leaders meeting for the next three days in Canada will have to paper over gaping differences after discouraged negotiators in last-minute talks made little progress on how to repair the world's economy.

Sources tell The Canadian Press that the final hours of talks among G20 negotiators - known as "sherpas" because they do the heavy lifting before the summit — yielded little in the way of substantive agreement.

Plans to map out the future of the fragile global economic recovery, finaninternacial regulation, tional development and climate change were up in the air, sources said.

In particular, U.S. President Barack Obama's negotiators are at loggerheads Prime Minister Stephen Harper and the International Monetary Fund over how quickly budget deficits need to be brought under control.

As the G8 and G20 summits get underway in Ontario, sources say U.S. President Barack Obama and Prime Minister Stephen Harper are at odds over economic initiatives

Your visit to our country and our upcoming visit to yours show the extent of the enduring friendship that has existed between Canada and China for many years," said Jean, who departs on a six-day China trip next Wednesday.

The U.S. Supreme Court set aside three of Black's convictions of mail fraud and sent them back to a lower court on the basis that a law used to convict Black of fraud — and others of white collar crimes - was too broad.

It has left ultimate resolution of Black's case to an appeals court, which means his fraud convictions still stand until dealt with there.

Black is likely to gain some satisfaction from the ruling but the fraud convictions are the least of his worries, said Chicago lawyer Andrew Stoltmann, closely Black's trial.

MILITARY An abrupt change in American military leadership in Afghanistan isn't likely to create a problem for the Canadian component of the NATO mission, officials say.

Local political leaders, however, say it's critical the new head of the NATO mission, celebrated Iraq commander Gen. David Petraeus, press ahead with his predecessor's focus on minimizing civilian casualties in order to maintain public support for NATO's security efforts.

U.S. President Barack Obama accepted Gen. Stanley McChrystal's resigna-tion Wednesday in the wake of disparaging comments he and his top aides made about Obama and his team in Rolling Stone magazine.

History repeats itself, your majesty

Dad was four when he saw Queen, now his four-year-old will see her

Roger Barliszen is planning to reprise a little family history this Canada Day.

The Ottawa government worker and his daughter Victoria, three months shy of her fourth birthday, may be among a projected 100,000 people on Parliament Hill when Queen Elizabeth II addresses the nation July 1. "I do recall seeing speech. one the Queen, the of four by the Queen during her nine That memory has days in Cana-da, will an-

Roger Barliszen

Barliszen himself was four years old in July, 1959, when "a big strapping Mountie in red serge came and hoisted me onto his shoulders" in Saskatoon to see the young

Queen Elizabeth, then making just her second trip to Canada as the reigning monarch.

More than half a century later, she's back for her 22nd official tour as Queen.

"I do recall seeing the Queen, the coat, the bonnet. That memory has just stuck with me, stayed with me,"

Barliszen said.

He hopes young Victoria gets a glimpse of the Queen
— either at Rideau Hall for a tree-planting June 30 or on Parliament Hill — to carry on a "family tradition."

The Queen starts her tour Monday in Halifax helping celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Canadian navv.

Matters wrap up on July 6 in Toronto.

Premier to CSIS chief: Explain

FUROR Nova Scotia's premier wants the head of Canada's spy agency to explain remarks about the influence of foreign governments, even though Dick Fadden backed away from his comments.

Premier Darrell Dexter said Fadden's comments were "deeply troubling" because they questioned the loyalty of Canadian politicians.

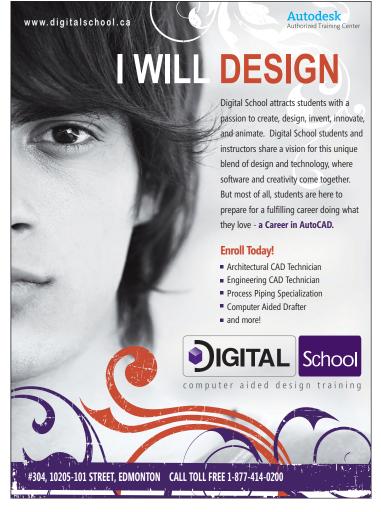

"I just think they are extraordinarily regrettable and there needs to be a full explanation as to why they were made in the first place," said Dexter. Fadden, director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, said he was in the process of warning at least two provinces, through the Privy Council Office, that members of their cabinets are under the influence of foreign governments. Later he appeared to backpedal, denying the Privy Council had been told.

Partiers killed by high-speed train on Spanish coast

The last thing they heard was the piercing whistle of an oncoming train.

Moments later, dozens of mostly Latin American immigrants who crossed the tracks instead of using an underground passageway to reach a beach party in a seaside resort were dead or injured, their body parts strewn among the rails.

The express train that barrelled through the station in northeastern Spain plowed into a group of young men and women that included Ecuadoreans, Chileans, Colombians and Bolivians - leaving 13 people dead, injuring 14 and turning a night of celebration into carnage.

The crowd got off a commuter train in the beach resort of Castelldefels, a 20minute train ride outside of Barcelona, shortly before midnight Wednesday. Many jammed an underpass leading to the beach, but about others climbed down from the platform and tried to scurry across the tracks, witnesses said.

Seconds later, a long-distance train that does not stop at the station crashed into the youths at high speed as its drivers sounded the whistle.

Marcelo Cardona, who was on the train, said everyone aboard had been looking forward to dancing around a bonfire on the Mediterranean shore.

Masseuse accuses Al Gore

A Portland massage therapist accused former vicepresident Al Gore of "unwanted sexual contact" at a hotel during an October 2006 visit, but no charges were filed due to lack of evidence, law officials said

An attorney representing the woman contacted police in late 2006, said

Multnomah County District Attorney Michael Schrunk. Schrunk said the woman — who has not been identified — refused to be interviewed by detectives and did not want the investigation to proceed.

The woman, however, contacted police in January 2009 and gave a statement, saying Gore tried to have sex with her during an appointment at the upscale downtown Hotel Lucia, where Gore was reportedly registered as "Mr. Stone."

The National Enquirer first reported the allegations Wednesday, identifying the accuser as a 54-year-old woman.

Gore family spokeswoman Kalee Kreider said the former vice-president has no comment. Gore and his wife announced June 1 they were separating.

A police report prepared in 2007 said the alleged incident occurred Oct. 24, 2006.

Gore was in Portland to deliver a speech on climate change.

5 U.S. Muslims jailed in terror case

courts Five young American Muslims were convicted of plotting terrorist attacks and sentenced to 10 years in jail Thursday in a case that highlights concerns about Westerners travelling to Pakistan to link up with al-Qaida and other extremist groups.

Prosecutors said email records, documents and witness statements proved the men from the Washington, D.C., area used the Internet to plot terror attacks in Pakistan and meet militant organizations in the country. They sought life imprisonment for the defendants. Defence lawyers said the evidence was faked and the men were innocent. They vowed to appeal. The father of one of the men said they were in Pakistan to attend his son's wedding, but also intended to cross into Afghanistan for humanitarian work.

Arrest shows terror reform flaws: Critics

Not long ago, Abdullah Sunata was a poster child for Indonesia's efforts to persuade terrorists to give up their violent ways.

But immediately after his release on good behaviour one year ago, Sunata allegedly returned to his old ways, catapulting to the top of the country's most-wanted list

He was arrested Wednesday for suspected involvement in a plot to carry out a Mumbai-style attack in Jakarta, and several highprofile assassinations, including one on President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono. Sunata's turnaround, experts say, highlights weaknesses in the predominantly Muslim country's deradicalization program.

Unlike Saudi Arabia, Malaysia and Singapore, efforts here have been largely police-led, focusing on getting prisoners to renounce violence and coopting informers. While officers provide financial help to reformed inmates and their families, little is done to challenge radical religious tenets.

"Many of those who are supposedly deradicalized remain committed to those goals," said John Horgan, director of the International Center for the Study of Terrorism at Pennsylvania

Scientists discover a personal touch: Study

Scientists are finding that how something feels to a person can affect how he or she acts. In one experiment, for example, 86 people took part in negotiations over a new car with a sticker price of $16,500.

Some were seated on hard wooden chairs. Others had comfy padded seats.

After their first offers were rejected, the participants made a second proposal for the car.

Note to car dealers:

 People on stiff wooden chairs took a hard line in the deal, raising their offered price by $896.50.

 But the relaxed folks in soft chairs were willing to spend an extra $1,243.60.

The hardness, the re-

Human element behind Air India probe

The long-awaited release of the government's Air India 182 report held little solace for the families of the 280 Canadians and 49 others who died over the Irish Sea June 23, 1985. Sixteen years before 9/11, it was at the time the deadliest terrorist attack in North American history, even if then-prime minister Brian Mulronev chose to direct his condolences to the government of In-

While the recent final report on Air India rightfully placed blame on CSIS and the RCMP for failing to prevent both disasters, it's worth noting there were many fine investigators.

including my father, who helped produce the only criminal conviction in either case — proving in court in 1991 that Inderjit

Singh Reyat built bomb that blew apart Japanese bag handlers Hideo Asano and Hideharu Koda.

But in a country where many dismissed Air India 182 as an "Indian" tragedy, Narita, with its much smaller body count, would never get much media play in Canada.

It's long been suspected, but never proven, that Reyat was involved with the Air India bomb as well, perhaps something lost in the inexcusable disconnect between the then-new intelligence establishment force. CSIS had only been created less than a year earlier, virtually all its staff transplants from the old RCMP Security Service.

A retired RCMP and CSIS person once told me that despite the shared roots, there were still areas of distrust between the two agencies. Why is anybody's guess. Clannish mentality permeates everything, from the highest levels of global power to the world of pin collecting.

There's no question the flaws of the RCMP and CSIS were, and are, deserving of criticism.

But remember, they are both staffed with humans, people who work hard and succeed at protecting lives in obscurity, often at great personal cost - and only get attention when they screw up.

Italy coach takes the blame

Marcello Lippi delivered a scathing verdict on his humiliated team Thursday after Italy was sent tumbling out of the World Cup by Slovakia, confessing he failed to motivate his aging squad that had played with fear.

After the defending champion was eliminated Thursday without winning a game in one of the tournament's easiest groups, the veteran Italy coach had to accept the truth that everyone else had seen. "I take full responsibili-ty," Lippi said after the 3-2 loss to Slovakia. "I thought this team could do more and that's what I prepared it to do, but when you see a team that plays with fear in their legs and in their hearts you understand that you have failed."

Save for the final 10 minagainst Slovakia, Italy's attack was confused and unable to hit the target. Lippi started all three group games with different formations but could never find the right formula.

"It's my fault," Lippi added. "I wasn't able to motivate the team. When something like this happens, it's always the leader's fault. I thought I played an important role when the team won, so it's only fair to have had just as big an impact in this failure.

Lippi led Italy to the 2006 title, when the Azzurri conceded only two goals over seven matches. This time they let in five goals in just three games, with 36-year-old captain Fabio

Star-spangled underdogs leaving a good impression

or Canadians it's difficult to side with Americans when it comes to fun and games.

It's an even more problematic alliance at global sporting summits.

In the beloved passion of hockey, at the most critical moments, the men and women clad in uniforms bearing "Old Glory" present the greatest threat to those who don the Maple Leaf.

The same is true of the Olympics. The Americans have the most money and deepest talent pool, thus they tend to win the lion's share of medals. That reality turns out to be the only asterisk to stain the success column of a wildly successful home Games in Vancouver.

But things are different somehow at the World

But the Americans didn't complain much. They chalked it up to the breaks of the game.

In a way, the Americans are outsiders at the World Cup. They come from a continent that is not considered to be the heartland of the sport.

In that respect they are very much like Canadians. But these American athletes are proving there's hope for those who live on the frontier of football.

The star-spangled boys of soccer are playing the role of underdogs and winning friends fast.

Draft day finally dawns

Plenty of trade buzz, as Oilers prepare to make pick

With the hockey world descending on the Staples Center for the NHL draft, the league's next group of young stars won't be the only ones in the spotlight. An evolving landscape under the salary cap will be as well.

The signs of a changing system have been evident not only in the unusually high number of deals consummated ahead of Friday's first round, but also in the nature of the buzz still lingering.

One thing most of the names who are said to be available have in common is that they're carrying a significant contract —
Boston Bruins forward Marc Savard (owed $30 million US over next six years) goaltender Thomas ($5 million cap hit for three years); Edmonton

Deal with Blackhawks

The Edmonton Oilers have made a minor trade with the Stanley Cup champion Chicago Blackhawks. The Oilers acquired centre Colin Fraser for a sixth-round draft pick.

• The 25-year-old Fraser had 36 points (13 goals, 23 assists) and 108 penalty minutes in 157 regular-season games with the Blackhawks over the past four years.

Oilers defenceman Sheldon Souray ($5.4 million cap hit for two years); Ottawa Senators forward Jason Spezza ($7 million cap hit for five years); and Dallas Stars forward Mike Ribeiro ($15 million over three years).
The list goes on and on.

number of general managers have arrived in California with hopes of getting out from under the weight of cap-crippling contracts for either financial or competitive reasons.

"Managers seems to be a little more proactive this year," said Oilers GM Steve Tambellini, who holds the No. 1 selection in the draft. "If there are players out there and teams that have a hardship with regards to the cap and you can solve a problem now, you'd rather do that than have to wait until (free agency opens) July 1. .

"If you can solve some of your issues now, most managers would like to do that and get it done.'

Nothing hammered that point home more than seeing the Chicago Blackhawks ship Dustin Byfuglien, Ben Eager and Brent Sopel to Atlanta just two weeks after they helped the team win the Stanley Cup.

The scariest thing for fans of the Blackhawks is that the team likely isn't done with its purge. You can add Philadelphia, Calgary and Detroit to the list of those who will probably have to be creative with their cap situation this summer.

It could make for a very interesting draft weekend as teams look to get to work as soon as possible. That is especially important in a year where the free agent class is viewed

Wizards use top pick on Wall

NBA DRAFT John Wall is ready to go to Washington and clean up the Wizards. And he's expected to have more backcourt help when he gets there whether or not Gilbert Arenas is still around.

The Wizards selected Wall with the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft and agreed to a trade for another guard Thursday, hoping they've found players who can help them quickly bounce back from a season that was embarrassing on the court and in the locker-room.

"I feel like I had pressure since I became No. 1 in high school and was one of the top players," Wall said. "I always got there hungry wanting to fight hard and compete in every game, so when I step on the court I'm going to take on any challenge there."

Small town feel close to city

Safety and green space make St. Albert a great place to raise a family

For some people, living in a big city like Edmonton just isn't all that appealing. The hustle and bustle of every day business, rush hour traffic, high-density living... it can get to be too much.

That doesn't mean, however, that the city's attractions have to be far away. Lying adjacent to Edmonton's north end is St. Albert, a city with a population of just under 60,000.

Weighing in as Alberta's fifth largest city, it is also one of the safest in Cana-

"It's small and there are a lot of parks," St. Albert resident Elyse

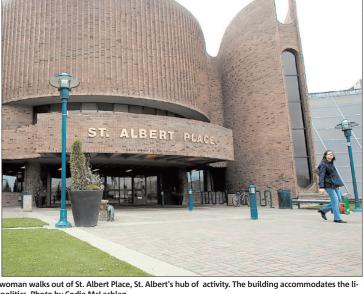

Dussault said. "It's easy to get to your job, and you can walk everywhere."

The city, which founded in 1861 by Father Albert Lacombe, was originally a mission that found its roots in Lac Ste. Anne.

However, the soil in Lac Ste. Anne was infertile, and Lacombe asked Bishop Alexandre-Antonin Taché for permission to establish the mission in what would become St.

CODIE MCLACHLAN for Metro Edmonton

Lying adjacent to the City of Edmonton's northern borders, St. Albert is a growing community of just under 60,000 residents.

Because of its close proximity to Alberta's capital city, it should come as no surprise that many of St. Albert's residents commute to Edmonton to get to work. Because of this, a reliable transit system is needed. "The St. Albert transit system operates local routes in all neighbourhoods of St. Albert," transit spokesperson Ian Sankey said.

"It also runs commuter service into key destinations in the City of Edmonton"

St. Albert's buses, which are separate from Edmonton's transit system, take commuters to downtown Edmonton, the University of Alberta, Grant MacE-University, NAIT, Westmount Mall and Kingsway Shopping Centre, Sankey said.

The lifestyle is growing in St. Albert

What does it truly mean to have a growing community? In St. Albert, it's all about "Cultivating Life."

St. Albert is The Botanical Arts City where residents and visitors cultivate life, nurturing and growing in their areas of interest, while enjoying all the community has to offer.

The botanical brand is a community-led initiative that has been two years in the making. With the city's urban forest setting, tree-lined neighbourhoods, 1,000 acres of green space, plans for a wetlands interpretive centre at Big Lake, a beautiful Botanic Park, and development of the upcoming Hole's Enjoy Centre – a state-of-the-art, 4.5-hectare gardening, retail and conference centre - it's clear that St. Albert embraces the botanical arts.

The city's diverse recreational, cultural, artistic and educational opportunities ensures that there's something for everyone to cultivate, whether it's the athlete in you, the artist in you, the entrepreneur in you, the volunteer in you or another area that you are truly passionate about.

Over the next few years, community stakeholders will work together to further earn the brand and promote St. Albert as the place to grow.

Cultivating a Friendly, Active Community

Residents often refer to St. Albert as a friendly, family-oriented community. This is seen every year through regular feedback and the annual Community Satisfaction Survey.

When it comes to building an active community, residents have access to high-quality recreational amenities, such as: the Red Willow Park Trail System, offering over 70 kilometres of trails; Servus Credit Union Place, the community's extensive multipurpose recreational facility; Riel Recreation Park, an outdoor venue for football, soccer, rugby and BMX; Fountain Park Recreation Centre, a great location for swim lessons; and Woodlands Water Play Park, a free outdoor splash park.

Cultivating a Fun and Exciting Atmosphere

St. Albert offers some of the best attractions and events in the Capital Region, including: the International Children's Festival; the Rainmaker Rodeo; Rock n' August; the largest outdoor farmers' market in western Canada; numerous year-round performances at the Arden Theatre; celebrated heritage sites; a public library with vast literature and programs for all ages; and a beautiful downtown arts district.

Cultivating Business

Living and owning a business in St. Albert offers many advantages. St. Albert business owners enjoy a commute of less than 10 minutes, the ability to walk or ride their bike to work, quick access to Anthony Henday Drive and, of course, more time with family and friends.

Here's what residents say about St. Albert:

- 98% enjoy the quality of life in St. Albert, with 81% rating it as very good or excellent;
- 94% are pleased with the parks and trails system;
- 92% feel they receive fair to excellent value for their tax dollars;
- 91% feel St. Albert is a safe place to live;

Grown Ups one lazy comedy

PHIL BROWN for Metro Canada

Another year, another Adam Sandler movie. When this guy left Saturday Night Live in 1995 no one expected him to become the biggest comedy star in Hollywood, but somehow he's managed to make a career out of playing lovable losers that get the girl and solve some sort of high concept conundrum.

Grown Ups is Sandler's latest film and quite possibly his laziest yet. The concept is that Sandler and his real life buddies Chris Rock, Kevin James, David

Spade, and Rob Schneider meet up for a reunion at a giant cottage.

The final product makes it clear that Sandler just wanted to hang out with these guys for a few months and they kind of made a movie when they weren't enjoying the vacation, but probably weren't paying much attention.

The plot (such as it is) sees Sandler and co. reuniting over the death of their former basketball coach.

Even though they only spent a few years with the coach as teenagers, he insisted that they all attend his funeral. Weirdly, it seems as though the coach had no family, because soon they're in charge of dumping out the ashes and turn it into a weekend reunion.

Everyone has little problems when they arrive, but they don't matter that much and are all wrapped up in one painfully long weepy scene.

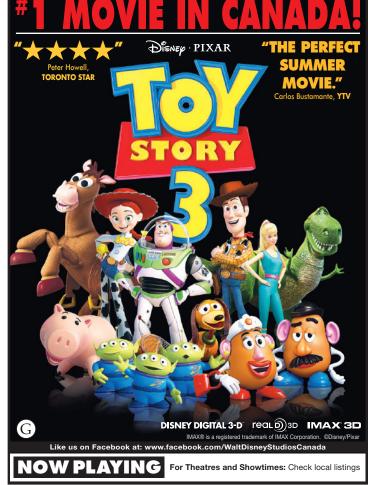

Other than that the movie is little more than a string of gags with the five friendly comedians trying to make each other laugh.

Admittedly, there are some chuckles to be had, but the best laughs most likely took place when the cameras weren't rolling.

There's nothing wrong with lowbrow comedies that have no ambition beyond easy laughs, but Grown Ups is particularly lazy. Sandler's crude/sentimental shtick is getting old and it seems like he isn't even trying to tell stories anymore. The good news is that all these comedians clearly had a good time making a movie last summer. The bad news is that no one else was invited to the party.

Stewart still surprised by success of Twilight Saga

NED EHRBAR Metro World News

Kristen Stewart has played Bella Swan, the young woman at the centre of the hugely successful Twilight franchise, in three films now. But she isn't tired of her vampireloving alter-ego.

"It's super indulgent," she tells Metro. "Everybody always asks, 'It must be so exhausting, you must be so sick of her.' It's like, no. It's like writing a thesis as opposed to writing a paper."

It's a good thing she isn't sick of Bella yet, as Stewart has two more films to complete in the series. She spoke with Metro about splitting the last book into two parts, taking on On the Road and dealing with the madness of the MTV Movie Awards.

out over two movies?

I'm excited. I feel like the fans are going to love it because we're going to have the time to tell the whole story. What happens when you try to cram such a long story into an hour and a half, the first things that are skimmed off the top are the things I love the most, which is details and the little things that make the characters who they are.

Did you anticipate how much of a phenomenon it's become, or could you not have predicted it?

I don't think any-body could have. I've never seen any-body respond to a movie or a book the way I've seen some of these people respond. Initially, we thought that we had a cult hit. We thought that our little Twilight fan group is going to love our movie and make it somewhat successful, and maybe other people will catch on. Other people caught on like crazy. So initially it wasn't going to be this global phenomenon. It was going to be like a cult hit.

You're filming On the Road this summer.

Yeah. It's finally getting made, which is really a miracle. I can't believe I'm this age at this time when it finally gets made. Somebody the other

Rathbone's career on the rise with Last Airbender

PHIL BROWN for Metro Canada

Jackson Rathbone might be set to make tween girls and middle-aged woman squeal with delight next week in the new Twilight movie, but that's not the film that he's most excited to be a part of this summer.

this summer.
Instead, Rathbone is looking forward to audiences seeing his role in the upcoming M. Night Shyamalan movie The Last Airbender, which is based on a popular TV series.

"My friends were always huge fans of the show and so was I." Rathbone told Metro. "While they weren't quite so excited when they learned that I was in Twilight, now I've got my guy friends thinking I'm kind of cool. So, it's nice to get some credibility. After all, I know kung fu now."

The film is based on the Nickelodeon animated series Avatar: The Last Airbender (part of the title was dropped for the movie for obvious reasons) about a world separated into distinct populations based on their ability to control one of the four elements.

When a young child is discovered who can control all of the elements, he is cherished because he could bring peace to the divided world. Rathbone plays a member of the water tribe who helps the young boy on his journey. It's not exactly the type of movie that you'd expect to see from the director of tense thrillers like Signs and The Sixth Sense, but Rathbone revealed that M.

Night Shyamalan's daughters played a role in convincing the director to stretch.

"Apparently his daughters were big fans of the show and it was their idea to do this movie. So he spread his wings and made a family film," said Rathbone before clarifying, "Well, not a family film in a sense that it's G-rated and cows are talking to pigs. This is a film with so much action that everyone's going to love it."

ing to love it."

Much like the TV series that inspired it, the film will be filled with complex action sequences guaranteed to thrill audiences.

It's a big part of what drew Rathbone to the project and he was thrilled to play an action hero.

"I probably did about 90 per cent of my fights and it was a blast," said Rathbone.

"I got to work with some of the premiere stuntmen and stuntwomen in the industry. I met guys who played James Bond back when it was Sean Connery and would jump out of airplanes and do the most amazing things. It was such an honour to be working with people of that calibre."

Couples on the run

he road trip is part of the American psyche dating back to the young men (and women) who took Horace Greeley's famous advice —"Go west young man!"— to heart and left the east for the frontier.

Hollywood saw the allure early on, recognizing that road movies offer opportunities to inject exciting secondary characters and interesting scenery into stories each time the leads stop in a new town. Add to that the sexy appeal of two people running for their lives and you have a new genre — the fugitive couple movie.

Whether it is the doomed Henry Fonda and Sylvia Sydney on the lam in 1937s You Only Live Once or Tom Cruise and Cameron Diaz's worldwide trek in this weekend's Knight and Day, the idea of runaways on the open road has been irresistible to filmmakers.

One early fugitive road movie is Persons in Hiding, a nasty 1939 film based on J. Edgar Hoover's bestselling book of the same name. J. Carrol Naish stars as a small-time hood on the run with Dorothy Bronson (Patricia Morison).

Natural Born Killers, starring Julliete Lewis and Woody Harrelson, is one of the most controversial films ever made

Together they rob banks and even kidnap a hapless stranger all to appease Ms. Bronson's appetite for champagne and furs. Of course, this being based on Hoover's book, the pair isn't mythologized à la Bonnie and Clyde. No, the heroes here are the FBI who use their "infallible" methods to bring the couple to justice.

Better known is The Getaway, Sam Peckinpah's violent love letter to criminal behaviour. Based on a 1959 pulp novel by Jim Thompson, it stars Steve McQueen as a cocky safecracker who hits the road with Ali MacGraw following a botched holdup.

Panned on its original release — Roger Ebert called it "a big, glossy, impersonal mechanical toy" — it was a box office success, partly because of the ruckus the tabloids made when MacGraw left her husband, producer Robert Evans, for McQueen during production.

More recently crime and scandal were at the heart of Natural Born Killers, a satire of media sensationalism and America's love affair with violence. Woody Harrelson and Juliette Lewis play married murderers — "the best thing to happen to mass murder since Manson" — on a cross country killing spree.

SONY

REVIEW The folks at Pixar have returned to the characters of their first movie, now 15 years past, and come up with an inspired, intelligent and entertaining film expertly straddling the line between kids and adults entertainment. The latest instalment finds Woody (Tom Hanks), Buzz Lightyear (Tim Allen) and the rest of the familiar toys of the first two films fretting over their owner Andy's impending departure to college. After be-coming convinced they're headed for the trash heap, the toys mount an escape that lands them in the apparent Shangri-La of a local day-care centre, where the toy world is overseen by a deceivingly cuddly old teddy bear (Ned Beatty). While kids will certainly enjoy the movie, don't be surprised to find most of the adult audience needing tissues. The visuals are spectacular enough without 3-D, and the technology doesn't add enough to warrant the higher ticket price.

The Karate Kid

REVIEW To anyone alive in the 1980s, the Karate Kid legend is a familiar one. In this reboot, Jaden Smith (son of Will and Jada) stars in the role Ralph Macchio made a Reagan era icon. The story's been freshened by a move to Beijing but the filmmakers wisely kept the underdog coming-ofage tale front and centre. Smith is the film's centrepiece. He's clearly still a novice, but has inherited the best bits of his mother and father's collective gene pools (he got his mother's ears! Yay!) and has charisma to burn. He's ably assisted by co-star Jackie Chan, who brings warmth and personality to Mr. Han.

Get Him to the Greek

REVIEW Just as Judd Apatow made stars out of unlikely actors Seth Rogen and Jason Segel, Get Him to the Greek aims to turn Russell Brand and plumpy Jonah Hill into Hollywood's latest A-listers. And it may just do it. A spin-off to the 2008 Apatow-produced hit Forgetting Sarah Marshall, this tale about a record executive hopeful named Aaron (Hill) and his lascivious, out-of-control rock 'n' roll charge (Brand, reviving Marshall's Aldous Snow character) anchors grossout gags by giving the bedlam a heart.

Harmer holds her fire

Singer-sogwriter back with first new album in five years

GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM for Metro Canada

Five years is a long time between albums in the pop music world.

Many artists would have released at least two studio CDs during that time, maybe a DVD and a live album as well.

We can excuse Sarah Harmer's long break between albums, though. She's been preoccupied.

For the past five years, Harmer has been at the centre of a fight to block a proposed gravel quarry on a picturesque piece of the Niagara Escarpment near her childhood home in rural north Burlington, Ont.

The Juno-winning singer-songwriter's time has been taken up with raising funds, hiring consultants, lobbying politicians, studying scientific reports and prepping for a seemingly endless series of land-use hearings.

If anything, it's surprising that she found any time at all to write and record her new CD, Oh Little Fire, which was released this week.

"It's definitely an album based around human emotions, experiences and relationships from a personal perspective."

Sarah Harmer

"Yeah, it was a long time coming," Harmer agrees in an interview from her home near Kingston. "But perspective is pretty important when it comes to time."

Harmer admits it wasn't easy to pick up songs that, in some cases, she had started years earlier.

"I started a few of them a long time ago," she explains. "I'd have an idea for a song — a melody, a verse, a little bit of sentiment — to get back to it and make something complete, that took a while."

Her previous album, I'm a Mountain, was released in 2005 shortly after she had formed the environmental group mortally

For the past five years, Juno-winning singer-songwriter Sarah Harmer has been at the centre of a fight to block a proposed gravel quarry on a picturesque piece of the Niagara Escarpment.

PERL (Protecting Escarpment Rural Land) to fight the quarry proposal. It was an acoustic record with a country tinge and filled with the politics of the environment. It made the short list for the Polaris Music Prize for top Canadian album. An accompanying DVD won a Juno award.

Politics is largely absent from the songs of Oh Little Fire. One track, Washington, is about her regret at not travelling to the U.S. capital to for President Barack Obama's inauguration. Songs about the environment, however, are noticeably lacking.

"No, there aren't any overt land-use issues commented on," she laughs. "It's definitely an album based around human emotions, experiences and relationships from a personal perspective."

To help guide her transition back to the recording studio, Harmer reached out to old friend and producer Gavin Brown. Brown, best known for his work with rock bands like Billy Talent, had played drums on Harmer's 2000 breakthrough album You Were Here.

Brown's influence brought electric guitars and keyboards back into the mix. Only one track — Silverado, sung with the help of alt-country queen Neko Case — contains the rootsy feel of I'm A Mountain.

"(Brown) was a huge part of making this record," she says. "He really kicked it in for me. ... I had all these songs in my mind for a long time. He helped me express them."

Eminem puts the art back into album covers

here was a time when I had beautiful handwriting, a lovely cursive script with distinctive jaunty flourishes with the uppercase "A" and the lowercase "g" and "j." But no more. Keyboards — first an IBM Selectric and then a computer — completely destroyed my ability to write in longhand.

Todav. I'd have better

Today, I'd have better luck reading ancient Sumerian runic symbols than anything I might have written down in the last 10 minutes. The only way I can be remotely legible is to jot down everything in ALL CAPS.

Stars' ghostly sounds

GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM for Metro Canada

Those twin little airls who hang out in the halls of Stanley Kubrick's horror classic The Shining, have a lot in common with the Stars' new CD The Five Ghosts.

On the outside, they're all cute ribbons and curls. But on the inside, they're lost souls, crying out in agony from the depths of the netherworld.

"That's a huge influence on my life, that movie, The Stars' Shining," says founder Torquil Campbell. "I think we've always had that in our music."

Campbell is talking about the eerie pop-synth mix that comes about when Stars' lead singer Amy Millan's childlike voice meets the ghoulish nature of new songs like Dead Hearts, Winter Bones and I Died So I Could Haunt You.

'That's always something we've tried to do in the songs," Campbell ex-plains, "To take subject matter that was sort of the opposite of the music you were hearing.

"So you receive the music in one way and then you receive the story within the music in another way. That creates the tension and unease between the two things. I think the best pop music is about that tension, achieving a kind of halfway point between joy and darkness." Campbell says the dark nature of the material also honestly to the band's five members who wrote the 11 new tracks collectively.

"Definitely ghosts, the loss of people, death, all those things were a part of this year for all of us. We had a tough year that way. My dad passed away and people were born (Campbell and his wife have a baby daughter). And Chris (Seligman, keyboardist) had this bizarre episode in Vancouver of being haunted and literally having to leave his apartment in the middle of the night.

"So right from the get-go there was this something pointing us toward talking about this stuff. It kind of came upon us. It wasn't something that we decided to do."

Oscars might get moved up to January

Academy Awards organizers are talking about moving up the date of the show, possibly as early as January. A firm date of Feb. 27 already has been set for next year's 83rd Oscars, so 2012 is the earliest any change would take effect. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Say goodbye to As the World Turns

You can view the clip on YouTube: Dr. Bob Hughes lunching with a fellow doctor in a scene aired live on As the World Turns the afternoon of Nov. 22, 1963.

"Shall we get a menu?" Hughes says to his dining companion. "Waiter! I'd like to order. I'm kind of hungry."

That scene was the last the TV audience would see of As the World Turns that day as CBS News seized the schedule for continuous coverage of President John Kennedy's assassination.

The young, dark-headed actor who played Dr. Bob, as well as the rest of the cast, completed the show shielded from both the fact of its pre-emption and the terrible reason why.

Only after the episode's final fade-out did they learn of the tragedy, as the actor portraying Dr. Bob, Don Hastings, recalled one day last week.

Now 76 and handsomely silver-haired, Hastings was in his dressing room between scenes at the Brooklyn studio the series has called home the past decade. He was still playing Dr. Bob — lately the head of Oakdale Memorial Hospital and, as always, endowed with a perfect bedside manner — just a few months shy of 50 years after landing the part.

But Hastings won't get to reach his half-century milestone in October. On Sept. 17, TV's oldest daytime drama will fold.

On Wednesday, ATWT wrapped production forev-

"It's been a job and a home and friendships for 50 years," said Hastings, an avuncular, era-spanning presence as he pondered the series' end. "I don't think it's hit me yet."

The summer after CBS' Guiding Light was cut down after 72 years on radio and then television, the doomsday scenario that has plagued soaps for decades has now claimed ATWT.

ABC's General Hospital, which premiered in April 1963, will now inherit the title as TV's oldest soap. But who knows for how long?

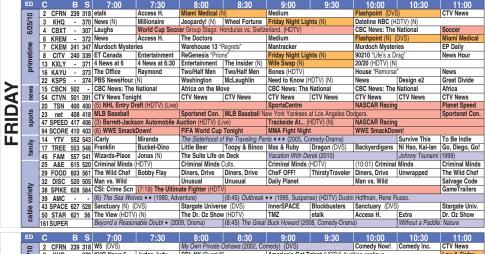

Used to be, at any given time there were a dozen or more daytime dramas on the networks. Soon there will be only six, with only ABC's One Life to Live still originating in New York. The ratings for all of them are a fraction of what they once were, and continue in a downward spiral. ATWT, ranked last, this season is averaging 2.4 million viewers, whereas in the 1991-92 season, it drew 6.7 million viewers, according to the Nielsen Co.

"This show was created in the 1950s, and now there are different viewing patterns, different economic models, and we're all fighting a tough fight to stay in the business," said Chris Goutman, ATWT executive producer since 1999. "Daytime has been in trouble for a long time, and we're part of that bigger picture.

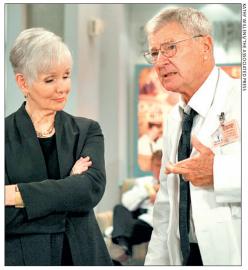

"But when was the time that I thought we were fighting a losing battle? Never. I always think we're going to win the battle. But this time we didn't."

Ellis goes back to Zero LGBT teens finally

DOROTHY ROBINSON Metro World News

For Bret Easton Ellis, it turns out that you can go home again. Twenty-five vears after he burst onto the literary scene with Less Than Zero, a novel that encompassed the bleak ennui of an '80s Los Angeles.

Ellis is back living in his hometown and has re-turned to Zero's cast of characters in the just-released sequel, Imperial Bedrooms.

Every single author photo I have has been carefully choreographed. I wanted this one to look older and douchier than that louche young man in a loosened tie I took when I was 21 for Less Than Zero. This one took two days to pull off.

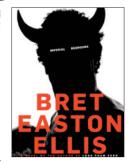

So in 30 years, your author photo will be in a nursing home? [Laughs] One day.

Or hey, maybe in the next two years.

When I first began thinking about the book and the characters of Less Than Zero and the sexual exploitation that happens, I thought of the Elvis Costello song. It's really as simple as that.

The use of violence — especially against women — is always a lightning rod for your work. Are vou ever surprised by how many fans you have when your writing can be so Maybe that's why I have so many fans. Really. Do people only respond to sympathy and lightness? If that were the only thing people liked, then 80 per cent of the literary canon wouldn't have been read. It's a tired complaint — the violence in my work. Look, this is how I feel. I'm writing within a fictional context. It isn't something I am thinking about when I'm having dinner.

Now a California resident, and a once-infamous New Yorker do you he ever missed living

No, I don't. Every now and again there is a pang. I'll read something somewhere about a party or see a Patrick McMullan photo and think, 'Oh yeah! I would have gone to that.' And then I think, 'Thank God I don't have to go he says. "It was a that,' great run, 17 really fun years. The party just ends for some people."

get a novel voice

At his Kentucky elementary school, kids taunted Brent on the playground about being gay, whatever that was. By eighth grade, he realized what they meant and came out to a friend - and vice versa.

She was an avid writer. he a voracious reader. They headed to their school library in search of stories that spoke to their lives: gay, gay in the South, gay and fearing stereotypes like "disgusting" and "worthless."

"There were tons of books about gangs and drugs and teen pregnancy and there were no LGBT books. I asked the librarian about it and she was like, 'This is middle school. I can only have appropriate books here," said Brent, now 15 and heading into his sophomore year of high school.

So they went to their public library, where they discovered plenty of romantic gay steam between covers for adults. "We weren't complaining," said Brent, who asked that his last name and hometown not be used

Turning next to bookstores, they finally found what they'd been looking for — a recent explosion in the publishing world of reads that speak to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning teens.

First came a gem, a book for young people that made them cry: Martin Wilson's 2008 debut, What They Always Tell Us, set in Tuscaloosa, Ala. The story about a troubled year for two brothers, one of whom finds solace in a relationship with a boy, made him feel less like an "alien on your own planet.'

A world of books followed. Brent read his way through Tom Dolby, Robin Reardon, Julie Ann Peters and David Levithan.

Books that speak to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning teens have travelled light years since John Donovan's I'll Get There. It Better be Worth the Trip led the way in 1969, now long out of print. The book on the confused world of 13-year-old Davy and the jock he kisses will be reissued in September from Flux, an imprint of Llewellyn Worldwide.

Well before gay characters began popping up in the mainstream on TV and at the movies, librarians embraced I'll Get There, said Kathleen T. Horning, director of the Co-operative Children's Book Center of the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Still until now few LGBT titles became blockbusters. That changed with two boys named Will Grayson and a very large, very GLEEful linebacker named Tiny.

Will Grayson, Will Grayson, by Levithan and John Green, debuted on the New York Times children's bestseller list and stayed there for three weeks after its April release. It's a first for a young adult novel with major themes and has delighted hungry readers teen fanboys and fangirls who were likely reason the book became a trending topic on Twitter. Penguin has 60,000 copies in print.

In alternating chapters, Green and Levithan write of two 16-year-old boys with little in common, living in separate Chicago suburbs. One's depressed and struggling to come out and the other is straight with a flamboyantly gay friend in Tiny Cooper, a football star on the hunt for love — and stardom in musical theatre.

"I AM tiny," said 20-year-old Andrew Casasanta, an English major at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va. "It's still very frustrating. I don't think that there's many characters out there that I can personally relate to and they're generally more stereotypes. It's important that this book, while having gay themes front and centre, was written well."

It helps that Levithan is a prolific rock star in gay lit for young people with an acclaimed winner in 2003, Boy Meets Boy. It also helps that Green is revered as a writer for teens, including his Paper Towns in 2008, and by fans of the adrenalin-infused videos he posts regularly online.

Superman to take a tour around America

COMICS The Man of Steel will hoof it across America to reconnect with everyday people in a story that will feature actual cities, towns and neighbourhoods submitted by read-

Superman, one of DC Comics' flagship fictional heroes, begins his journey next month in Philadelphia, where he'll embark on a 12-issue, cross-country walk — no flying, thank you — through Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon and Washington. Not on the travel itinerary is a through the Deep South. Dan DiDio, DC's co-publisher, told The Associated Press Wednesday that the Krypton-born, Kansas-bred hero had lost touch "with the people he grew up with, his adopted home on Earth" and he'll "take a walk across America to reconnect.'

In a bid to keep the story arc fresh in the age of instant communication and social media, readers of the comic who live within 80 kilometres of the cities of Chicago, Des Moines, Denver, Salt Lake City, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle can sub-mit essays of up 1,000 words touting why their city or neighbourhood should be included in the story titled Grounded" DC will select nine winners.

 Superman, created by Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster. first appeared in 1938 in Action Comics No. 1.

DiDio said DC is "looking to hear what people have to say, how the character affected their lives" and, he added, "more importantly, what the character means to them."

The story, scripted by veteran film, television and comic writer Michael Straczynski, whose previous work includes DC's The Red Circle books and Marvel's Thor and Fantastic Four, has its roots in the current issue, No. 700.

In it, Superman asks The Flash whether he actually sees the people he's pro-tecting as he barrels across the country at supersonic speeds.
"When I'm running flat-out, I see what I figure you see when you're flying up there at several bazillion times the speed of sound, the speedster replies. "I see a blur. Unless I make an effort to see the details.

Superman's decidedly slower-than-a-speeding-bullet walkabout officially starts with issue 701, which goes on sale next month, and lasts through issue 712.

From child to adult star

Cyrus on her way to duplicating success with third album

It's not always easy for child stars to continue their career into adulthood, or even puberty. For every Justin Timberlake, there's a Debbie Gibson.

That's why Miley Cyrus was so excited when her songs, The Climb and Party in the U.S.A., became bona fide hits on the pop charts last year. The Climb hit No. 4 on Billboard's Hot 100 chart while Party in the U.S.A. stopped just short of becoming the No. 1 song in the nation.

While she has sold millions of records as an extension of her omnipresent Disney persona, Hannah Montana, those songs represented her biggest success to date as Miley - and she connected with more than just the tween audience.

"The Climb is the best thing that's ever happened to me," Miley said in a re-cent interview. "It went on . every different kind of radio. I met everyone. I met 3year-olds, I met 30-year-olds, I met 80-year-olds. ... I got so many different fans."

The 17-year-old phenomenon is on her way to duplicating that success with her new album, Can't Be Tamed. The album's title track has already hit No. 8 on the charts.

But Miley is making more than a musical statement with the record. With songs like the title track and Robot, she's sending a message of a young woman who cannot be controlled.

"It's all about breaking free, being who you are and not being afraid to tell the world to back off sometimes, and do your thing and do what makes you happy," she said of the CD.

What makes Miley happy, however, doesn't always make others happy. And the more she inches to adulthood, the more critics she seems to garner for behaviour deemed age inapproup over the Vanity Fair photo where it made her look topless, wrapped in a bedsheet (she says she was not). She danced with a stripper pole at the 2009 Teen Choice Awards. This year, video surfaced of Miley giving one of the producers of her film The Last Song a lap dance at the wrap party. Earlier this month she simulated a girl-on-girl kiss while performing on Britain's Got Talent, and on the Much Music Awards, she gyrated onstage while wearing a revealing outfit.

Joan Ulrich, of Northville, Mich., worries about the affect Miley's recent behaviour will have on her young nieces.

"Their mom bought them tickets to see her show and they were so excited about her. They had her videos, T-shirts, the whole thing," she said.
"Then she evolves into this sex kitten and there's no control with her."

But Miley brushes off her critics, deeming them unsatisfied and unhappy with their own lives.

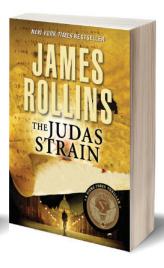

"It's just kind of a sad thing to think about people and how they are. I never really let it affect me," she adds. "My mom is at the side of that stage and if I ever felt I was disappointing her or not making her proud, I would not do the things I do, but she's proud of me every time."

SOMEONE GET PATTI ON THE PHONE: WE NEED A MILLION-AIRE MATCHMAKER INTERVEN TION A "miserable" Britney Spears is reportedly sneak-ing phone calls to paparazzo boyfriend Adnan Ghalib, according to Us Weekly. Despite Spears' relationship with former agent Jason and Ghalib's restraining order keeping him from being in contact with the singer, Spears has reportedly been desperate to talk to her ex. "She says she's not living the life she wants," a source tells the magazine. "She really wants to get back together Adnan."

Five-spice Pork

INGREDIENTS:

500 g pork tenderloin, trimmed of fat, cut into 5cm strips 250 g medium Chinese egg noodles 1 tsp canola oil 1 large onion, finely chopped 1 large garlic clove,

1 tbsp five-spice powder 1 cup sugar snap peas 2 large red peppers, seeded and thinly sliced 1/2 cup hot vegetable broth Salt and pepper Fresh cilantro leaves to garnish

METHOD:

1. Cook noodles or according to package instructions. Drain noodles well and set aside.

2. While noodles are cooking, heat wok until hot. Add oil and swirl to coat wok, then add onion and garlic; stir-fry 1 minute. Add five-spice powder and stir-fry another minute.

3. Add pork to wok and stir-fry 3 minutes. Add sugar snap peas and peppers; stir-fry 2 minutes. Pour in broth, stir well and bring to boil.

4. Add noodles to wok: stir and toss until all ingredients are well combined, 2 to 3 minutes. Season with salt and pepper to taste, sprinkle with cilantro leaves and serve immediately.
